By MEY LAQUEUR

WHEN there are parties in a country, sooner or later a state of affairs exists in which it is impossible to intervene efficiently in public affairs without joining a party and playing the party game. Anyone interested in public affairs who does not give up the idea and turn to something else, or pass through the party mill, in this case, too, they have preoccupied which exclude that of public welfare. Thus Simone Weil. Similar conclusions, not as radical perhaps for the time being, have been reached by a growing number of persons in this country, and the wish to reduce the multitude of political parties by electoral reform is the outgrowth of it.

PROPORTIONAL Representation, whatever the details in Britain and Sweden say, is no longer regarded as the "greatest invention of the 19th century" — it is on the wane throughout the world. With one notable exception (Belgium) P.R. has everywhere shown a multiplicative effect. Even in such places as Denmark, Holland and Switzerland the number of parties has doubled following the introduction of P.R. and elsewhere it has had even worse results. It cannot be mere coincidence that Fascism and Nazism gained a parliamentary foothold only in countries with P.R. The natural movement of societies tends towards the two-party system. (no two-party enthusiast himself) in his standard work "Political Parties" "Whenever public opinion is squarely faced with great fundamental problems, it tends to crystallize round two opposed poles." All great conflicts in world history have been decided — not between multi-party blocs or fronts or factions.

THE application of the simple majority system in Israel would be unjust, it has been argued, because the present multitude of parties after all only reflects the existence of an extremely mixed society. Orthodox and non-religious, nationalist "activists" and moderates, pro-Soviet and democratic, Ashkenazi and Sephardi, these and many more interests would not find their due representation in a two-party system. And as the ideal is that each group, faction or trend, however small, should have the opportunity to be heard, this criticism is undoubtedly justified. In an ideal state, everybody should be entitled to a very effective voice. Unfortunately, life in a society means that the individual has to give up some of his rights. Liberty, too, as Burke said, must be limited in order to be possessed. And when this society, which is to face great trials, when it struggles for its very existence, does so, it must be restricted for the sake of political stability, which is the first condition for the state. It is a very simple matter to prove it impossible under the vicissitudes of the multi-party system. There is no guarantee that a two-party system will succeed where the present system failed, there is only a better chance.

AND yet, when all is said and done, there are at least three good reasons which make one doubt the success of Mr. Ben-Gurion's proposal at the present time. One is the fact that any such major change presupposes a critical situation and the present state of affairs is far from being so serious, or at least does not appear so to most persons. Secondly, there is an enormous dead weight of party machines down to the smallest factions and sub-factions who all fear to forfeit their positions of command or give up their source of power. These extremely powerful vested interests will do their utmost, of course, to perpetuate the present situation and fight for an outcast against any reform, "Herut" and the Communists, the Orthodox parties and the Progressives, all the small parties and splinter groups will unite in this struggle on a denominator of common, negative interest. Thirdly, there is no safeguard that the application of the simple majority system would indeed produce bipartisanship in the future. It would undoubtedly cause a trend towards bipartisanship, but one cannot be sure of anything more than that.

Nasser Appeals to Nuri To Attend Cairo Parley

The emergency meeting of the Arab League Premier adjourned two-and-a-half hours after it had opened last night in Cairo in a move apparently taken to leave the door open for Iraqi Premier Nuri's participation.

Earlier yesterday, the Egyptian Premier, Col. Abdul Nasser, sent Nuri an urgent cable in which he urged Nuri to attend the "Arab League" meeting. Nuri's reply, which was received in Cairo, was to the effect that he would attend the conference to meet with what he called the "Arab League" and to discuss the threat to Arab unity posed by the Egyptian decision to conclude a defence alliance with Turkey.

Arab diplomatic sources believed that the conference will remain open until Nuri "is well enough" to attend personally. They pointed out that the Egyptian and other Premier had carefully avoided any dramatic break. Moderate counsels prevailed at the initial meeting.

Col. Nasser addressed the Premier last night for 30 minutes in the Egyptian Foreign Ministry. He outlined Egypt's attitude to the projected Turco-Iraqi alliance in terms of the three points which he expected him to make.

He said that the proposed pact would extend Arab commitments outside the Middle East area covered by the Arab League alliance, and that consequently Iraq's participation in a war would drag in other countries bound to her by other pacts.

Secondly, he stated, Iraq's recent severance of relations with Russia indicated that she intended to link herself completely with the West.

Thirdly, Turkey has diplomatic and, most important, trade relations with Israel at a time when the Arab countries are striving to blockade that country. Earlier, the Arab League had asked Nuri to reconsider his decision to stay away from the meeting. One informed League source said in Cairo last night that the meeting was just a formality in the hope that Nuri would relent.

Attending the meeting were Col. Nasser, who presided, Premiers Sami el-Solh of the Lebanon, Faris el-Khoury of Syria, Tewfik el-Rikabi of Jordan, and Emir Feisal of Saudi Arabia, representing his country's Premier, Emir Salim bin Abdul Aziz. The Emir of Kuwait, Sheikh Abdullah bin Jaber, was also present. The Lebanese Premier is due to arrive today to take part in the meeting. Baghdad, the Director of the Foreign Ministry, Khalil Ibrahim, asserted that Egypt at the recent Arab Foreign Ministers' conference in Cairo fully endorsed an Iraqi agreement with Turkey. He also denied Cairo Radio's broadcast claiming disagreement between Nuri and the Foreign Minister, Musa Shalabi, regarding the agreement. (UP, Reuters, ANA)

'Secret Talks' in London
 Secret Middle East defence talks are being held in London and will continue until next week. They are taking place on the initiative of the U.S. and the Americans are acting as hosts to British and Turkish military representatives, according to an "Al Ahram" report to Cairo yesterday from the British capital. Washington sources said that they are examining the questions of supplying the Middle East with equipment, ammunition and other necessities and are not discussing political issues.

4 Prisoners to Learn News if Syria Consents
 TEL AVIV, Saturday. — Lt. Col. Castagny, Chairman of the Israel-Syrian Mixed Armistice Commission, today informed the Israeli authorities that he would tell the four prisoners in the Damascus jail of the M.A.C. decision that they should be freed if the Syrian authorities agree that they be given this information. Last Thursday, Army authorities asked Major-General E.L.M. Burns to inform the prisoners of the M.A.C. decision taken on January 12 and General Burns agreed that the prisoners were entitled to know it.

Israel Soldier Is Slain in Negev; 2 Shot in Jerusalem

An Israel soldier was killed and two others were wounded on Friday morning when an Egyptian Army unit opened fire on an Israeli Druse unit patrolling in Israel territory in the vicinity of Nitzan.

Members of the Israel delegation to the Israel-Egypt M.A.C. in U.N. Observers' camp, the scene after the Israeli delegation had lodged a complaint and requested an investigation.

Two Israeli soldiers, Sgt. Markowitz, 20, and Shimon Mirzakhani, 19, were wounded on Friday morning by shots fired by Arab Legionnaires near the Muraqa Quarter of Jerusalem, ITIM reports.

The shooting began when one of the soldiers was at the edge of Muraqa Quarter. When he was hit, the second soldier rushed to his aid and was also hit by a bullet. The third soldier, who was also hit, was taken to the Muraqa Quarter hospital.

The second and subsequent shootings are stated to have been aimed at activating armoured regiments, to modernize and mechanize the two existing divisions, and to expand the Air Force to three wings.

Israelis Volunteer To Aid Costa Rica
 Israeli citizens have offered their services to the Costa Rican cause in the present struggle in that country, the Costa Rican Consulate-General announced yesterday in Tel Aviv.

Reuters reported from San Jose, the Costa Rican capital, that the Government forces closed in yesterday on the last isolated pockets of rebels. The report, General E.L.M. Burns, the Truce Supervision Chief, has sent to the U.N. Secretariat for its record. The rebels are now on the small peninsula of Santa Elena south of Puerto Soley on the Pacific coast.

Jordan Plea Rejected
 The Chairman of the Israel-Jordan Mixed Armistice Commission, Colonel C. Brewster, has rejected a Jordan demand for an emergency session of the M.A.C. to discuss a Jordan complaint on the alleged abduction and killing by Israel of a Jordan soldier near Al Khab, in the Bethlehem area, last Wednesday, the Old City daily "Falastin" reported.

Colonel Brewster told the Senior Jordan M.A.C. delegate, Dr. Hassan Nusseibeh, that there was not enough evidence to back the Jordan allegations.

LAWSON, SHARRETT MEET
 The U.S. Ambassador, Mr. Edward R. Lawson, was received by the Premier and Foreign Minister, Mr. Moshe Sharett, at his office in the Tel Aviv Kirya on Friday morning. The meeting took place at the Ambassador's request and, according to an official announcement, current problems were discussed.

Jordan Attacks Cause Concern
 Colonel R.E. Hommel, Military Adviser to Major-General E.L.M. Burns, and Mr. Henri Vigier, Political Adviser, were invited to the Foreign Ministry on Friday afternoon and met with Mr. Y. Tarkenton, in charge of Armistice Affairs, the Foreign Ministry spokesman announced.

(General Burns was in Nahariya on Friday on a private visit.) Mr. Tarkenton expressed the Government's concern over the recent outbreaks of Jordan aggression revealed in the past few days and especially the double murder in Agur on Tuesday morning. He also protested against the position taken on Thursday by the Chairman of the Foreign Ministry Armistice Commission in abstaining from taking responsibility in a decision on the incident.

The Jerusalem Post's Middle East Correspondent writes that Foreign Ministry sources pointed out that the relative relaxation along the border with Jordan in recent weeks was shattered by some serious incidents. The period of relative calm along this border prior to last week, the Foreign Ministry sources continued, proved that the Jordan authorities were able, if they wanted, to prevent attacks on Israel's territory and population, and therefore could not evade the responsibility for the renewal of tension.

13 ARMED CLASHES
 Thirteen armed clashes took place between marauders and Israel security forces during the week ending January 18. During that period, Israel's border was violated three times for purposes of illegal plundering and grazing, and a number of thefts of tools and agricultural equipment occurred.

Moscow Recalls Four Envoys in West

LONDON, Saturday (Reuters). — One of the early signs of a new world's conference of Soviet diplomats in Moscow will be a new note to the West about German reunification, was confidently believed in official quarters here today.

Mr. Vyacheslav Molotov, the Soviet Foreign Minister, last recalled his Ambassadors from London, Paris, Washington and East Berlin for the consultation.

Mr. Jacob Malik, the envoy to Britain, left London for Moscow today. The last time Russia's envoys to the three Western Powers were simultaneously recalled was in June, 1953, when Lavrenty Beria, the Soviet security chief, was arrested for treason.

 BONN, Saturday (Reuters). — Dr. Konrad Adenauer, West German Chancellor, said today in a nation-wide broadcast that he would not discuss the German question with the Soviet Union in her latest statement on Germany would be "devoid of any hope of success."

In his first public comment on the statement, in which Russia said she would recognize West Germany if she rejected the Paris treaties to rearm the Federal Republic, Dr. Adenauer declared that the tone of the Russian statement was "defiant," but showed that nothing had changed in the goals of Soviet policy.

Thousands of Parisians Threatened by Flood
 PARIS, Saturday (Reuters). — Paris tonight was menaced with the second worst flood of the century. In the suburbs, thousands fled their homes or moved to upper stories as the waters of the Seine and Marne rivers inundated houses.

In the centre of the capital this afternoon, the Seine was 1.5 metres above normal height. A flood crest of 7.45 metres, second only to the disastrous inundation of 1910, is predicted for Sunday, with more rain forecast over the weekend.

The situation was critical in the suburbs, where below Paris and on the swollen Marne upstream, more than 20,000 persons had either been evacuated by boat or were told to be ready to leave their homes if hastily reinforced dykes gave way.

Premier Pierre Mendes-France issued a pair of rubber boots today, and urged the people to be ready for the damage caused by the flood.

US Warships Steam to Formosa

HONG KONG, Saturday (Reuters). — American warships including three large aircraft carriers steamed towards Formosa today amid growing reports of Chinese Nationalist plans to evacuate troops from the Tachen Islands near the Chinese coast this week-end. Military observers in Hong Kong thought that the evacuation might already have begun even though the Nationalists expressed "firm opposition" to any such move. They are reported to have 20,000 troops there.

Shipping companies in Hong Kong were reported to be making tentative plans to divert vessels normally passing through the area about 200 miles north-west of Formosa and 50 from the Communist mainland.

The round-the-clock Nationalist bombing of the Chinese coast and ships now in its fourth day was seen as a further indication that the Chinese Government is planning to quit these islands.

The United States Navy carrier, USS Yorktown, and the USS Essex, all of 30,000 tons, left Manila Bay today with their rocket-carrying Grumman Hunter fighters and F-13 jet fighters. A naval spokesman said merely that they were going to their regular operational training area in the South China Sea, but informed sources identified this as the Formosa area 600 miles to the north.

On board the Helena was Vice-Admiral Alfred Price, commander of the United States Seventh Fleet which guards the Formosa Strait under Chiang Kai-shek's Mutual Security Treaty with the United States.

British lodged a strong protest with the Taipei Government demanding immediate investigation into the sinking of the British freighter, Edendale (1,716 tons), during the Nationalist bombing of Swatow on January 20.

Congress to Hear Ike's Plan Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, Saturday. — The White House announced today that President Eisenhower will send a special message to Congress on Monday asking authority to define and hold a line of United States defense in the Far East.

Mr. Eisenhower will ask Congress for authority to defend not only Formosa and the Pescadore Islands but Quemoy and Matsu from Chinese attack, it was learned today.

The headquarters of the Chinese Nationalist Government — Formosa and the Pescadores — have already been declared by Mr. Eisenhower to be vital to the defense of the United States and are accordingly protected by the Seventh Fleet.

An increased Chinese assault on the Tachen Islands and the President's decision to exclude those islands from direct protection may lead to their evacuation by the Nationalist forces now on the islands.

Mr. Eisenhower will ask for support the use of American air and naval forces to cover this evacuation, if necessary, as part of a general regrouping of Nationalist forces.

Quemoy, Matsu Vital
 The importance of Quemoy and Matsu in the American strategic view relates to the possible use by the Chinese of two major ports near those islands as bases for an invasion of Formosa.

Possession of Quemoy and Matsu by the Nationalists helps them to prevent the Chinese from using the Amoy for this purpose.

The Republican Leader in the House of Representatives today reported after a breakfast conference with the President that he had assured Mr. Eisenhower of overwhelming Congressional approval of any request for authority to defend Formosa against Communist aggression.

Mr. Martin stated that he felt the President already had sufficient power to act without going to Congress.

"But he wants the support of Congress on the world which know that in the defense of that area America stands united," Mr. Martin said.

He added there was no doubt that Congress would be virtually unanimous in approving United States participation in the defense of Formosa against any attack by Chinese forces.

Mr. Martin said he felt that the President did not consider the Chinese mainland. But he continued, Mr. Eisenhower would probably define clearly the area which the Government would feel justified in defending.
